

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26

HONORABLE ROBERT S. LASNIK

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
AT SEATTLE

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF THE
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

CITY OF SEATTLE, et al.,

Defendants.

Case No. 2:16-cv-00322 RSL

PLAINTIFF’S OPPOSITION TO DEFENDANTS’ MOTION TO DISMISS

OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO DISMISS
Case No. 2:16-cv-00322 RSL

TABLE OF CONTENTS

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26

Page

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES ii

INTRODUCTION 1

BACKGROUND 2

ARGUMENT 5

I. THE CHAMBER HAS ASSOCIATIONAL STANDING..... 5

 A. Several Of The Chamber’s Members Have Standing To Bring This Suit..... 5

 1. The Chamber’s Members Are Currently Suffering Injury And Face
 A Substantial Risk Of Future Injury 6

 2. These Injuries Are Traceable To The Defendants And Redressable
 Through A Favorable Ruling From This Court 18

 B. The Chamber’s Purpose Is To Advance The Interests At Issue In This Suit 19

 C. This Suit Does Not Require The Participation Of The Chamber’s
 Members 19

 1. Individual participation is unnecessary for the antitrust claims..... 20

 2. Individual participation is unnecessary for the Garmon claim..... 21

 3. Individual participation is unnecessary for the PRA claim 21

II. THE SO-CALLED PRUDENTIAL RIPENESS DOCTRINE PROVIDES NO
BASIS FOR REFUSING TO EXERCISE JURISDICTION 22

 A. The Chamber’s Claims Are Fit For Judicial Review 23

 B. Chamber Members Will Suffer Substantial Hardship If Review Is Deferred 23

CONCLUSION..... 24

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

1

2

3 CASES

4 Alaska Airlines, Inc. v. City of Long Beach,

5 951 F.2d 977 (9th Cir. 1991)17

6 Already, LLC v. Nike, Inc.,

7 133 S. Ct. 721 (2013).....15

8 Arizona. v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R.R.,

9 656 F.2d 398 (9th Cir. 1981)9

10 Aspen Grove Owners Ass’n v. Park Promenade Apartments, LLC,

11 No. 09 Civ. 1110, 2010 WL 4860345 (W.D. Wash. Nov. 19, 2010)21

12 Auto. Workers v. Brock,

13 477 U.S. 274 (1986).....19, 21

14 Babbitt v. United Farm Workers Nat’l Union,

15 442 U.S. 289 (1979)..... passim

16 Big Bear Lodging Ass’n v. Snow Summit, Inc.,

17 182 F.3d 1096 (9th Cir. 1999)23

18 Bland v. Fessler,

19 88 F.3d 729 (9th Cir. 1996)7, 9, 11

20 Cal. Pro-Life Council, Inc. v. Getman,

21 328 F.3d 1088 (9th Cir. 2003)11

22 Cannabis Action Coal. v. City of Kent,

23 351 P.3d 151 (Wash. 2015).....20

24 Chamber of Commerce v. Brown,

25 554 U.S. 60 (2008).....12

26 City of Oakland v. Lynch,

798 F.3d 1159 (9th Cir. 2015)17

1 Clapper v. Amnesty Int’l USA,
 2 133 S. Ct. 1138 (2013).....12, 13, 14

3 Davis v. FEC,
 4 554 U.S. 724 (2008).....15, 16

5 Ex Parte Young,
 6 209 U.S. 123 (1908).....20

7 Friends of Earth, Inc. v. Laidlaw Envt’l Servs. (TOC), Inc.,
 8 528 U.S. 167 (2000).....13

9 Holder v. Humanitarian Law Project,
 561 U.S. 1 (2010).....8

10 Hunt v. Wash. State Apple Advert. Comm’n,
 11 432 U.S. 333 (1977).....5, 19

12 Lexmark Int’l, Inc. v. Static Control Components, Inc.,
 13 134 S. Ct. 1377 (2014).....22

14 Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife,
 15 504 U.S. 555 (1992).....6, 18

16 Marine Eng’rs v. Interlake S.S. Co.,
 370 U.S. 173 (1962).....21

17 MedImmune, Inc. v. Genentech, Inc.,
 18 549 U.S. 118 (2007).....7, 9, 11, 15

19 Meese v. Keene,
 20 481 U.S. 465 (1987).....13

21 Mendia v. Garcia,
 22 768 F.3d 1009 (9th Cir. 2014)12, 14

23 Monsanto Co. v. Geertson Seed Farms,
 24 561 U.S. 139 (2010).....13

25 NAACP v. Patterson,
 26 357 U.S. 449 (1958).....15

OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO DISMISS
 Case No. 2:16-cv-00322 RSL

1 Narayanan v. British Airways,
 2 747 F.3d 1125 (9th Cir. 2014)18

3 Nat’l Constructors Ass’n v. Nat’l Elec. Contractors Ass’n, Inc.,
 4 498 F. Supp. 510 (D. Md. 1980).....20

5 Nat’l Family Planning & Reproductive Health Ass’n, Inc. v. Gonzales,
 6 468 F.3d 826 (D.C. Cir. 2006).....14

7 Ohio Civil Rights Comm’n v. Dayton Christian Sch., Inc.,
 8 477 U.S. 619 (1986).....7

9 Reg’l Rail Reorganization Act Cases,
 419 U.S. 102 (1974).....9

10 S.W. Suburban Bd. of Realtors, Inc. v. Beverly Area Planning Ass’n,
 11 830 F.2d 1374 (7th Cir. 1987)20

12 San Diego County Gun Rights Committee v. Reno,
 13 98 F.3d 1121 (9th Cir. 1996)10, 11

14 Sprint Comms., Inc. v. Jacobs,
 15 134 S. Ct. 584 (2013).....22

16 Susan B. Anthony List v. Driehaus,
 17 134 S. Ct. 2334 (2014)..... passim

18 Thomas v. Anchorage Equal Rights Commission,
 220 F.3d 1134 (9th Cir. 1999)10, 11

19 United Food & Commercial Workers v. Brown Group, Inc.,
 20 517 U.S. 544 (1996).....19

21 Valle del Sol, Inc. v. Whiting,
 22 732 F.3d 100611

23 Virginia v. Am. Booksellers Ass’n,
 24 484 U.S. 383 (1988).....8

25 Warth v. Seldin,
 26 422 U.S. 490 (1975).....5, 21

1 STATUTES

2 5 U.S.C. § 702.....21

3 15 U.S.C. § 26.....20

4 29 U.S.C. § 152(3)21

5 33 U.S.C. § 1365(a)21

6 33 U.S.C. § 1365(g)21

7 42 U.S.C. § 1983.....21

8 Public Records Act21, 22

9 Seattle Code § 6.310.1104

10 Seattle Ordinance 124968..... passim

11 Wash. Rev. Code § 19.86.090.....20

12 Washington Trade Secrets Act, Wash. Rev. Code § 19.108.010(4).....22

13

14 OTHER AUTHORITIES

15 Daniel Beekman, An Uber Union? Seattle Could Clear Way For Ride-App

16 Drivers, Seattle Times (Nov. 28, 2015), goo.gl/oapjuV3, 16

17 Daniel Beekman, City Council Member Says Let Uber Drivers Unionize, Seattle

18 Times (Aug. 31, 2015), goo.gl/BybwbH3

19 Teamsters 117 Registration Page, Wash. Sec’y of State, goo.gl/RTw12j.....16

20 U.S. Dep’t of Labor, goo.gl/wMufaV.....16

21

22

23

24

25

26

INTRODUCTION

1
2 The City concedes that the Ordinance is going into effect, informing the Court of its
3 planned timeline and stating that it is “working to implement the Ordinance” and expects to set a
4 “Commencement Date” by September 19, 2016. Decl. of Douglas Carey ¶ 4, Dkt. 32. The City
5 likewise refused a request by counsel for Plaintiff the Chamber of Commerce of the United 6 States of America, made before it commenced this lawsuit, to provide assurances that the City
7 would not implement or enforce the Ordinance. Compl. ¶ 43. There is, therefore, no question
8 that this Court will, in just a few months, be required to adjudicate this suit on the merits. And 9 no factual development between now and then is needed in order to decide the purely legal 10 claims raised by the Chamber. Yet the City’s motion asks the Court to forestall any such 11 adjudication until November 16, 2016, when unions will demand driver lists, at which point this
12 Court will have just sixteen days to resolve this case—unless the City agrees to stay enforcement
13 of the Ordinance pending litigation—before the Chamber’s members are required to turn over 14 those driver lists on December 2. Carey Decl. ¶ 5.

15 There is no need to create an artificial emergency. This Court has ample authority to 16 resolve this case now, and the merits of the Chamber’s purely legal claims may be briefed
17 starting now on a reasonable schedule for the parties that also permits sufficient time for the 18 Court to rule. And that is particularly true where, as here, the suit will, even under the City’s 19 erroneous view of the law, undoubtedly be well positioned for review by the time the merits of 20 the matter are fully briefed, argued, and ready for decision.

21 The key issue for Article III associational standing and ripeness, which amount to the 22 same thing here, is that the Chamber’s members are facing several present or imminent injuries.
23 These members are suffering actual, ongoing injuries such as (i) coerced compliance with the 24 Ordinance’s anti-retaliation provision; and (ii) reasonable expenditures required to prepare for 25 the Ordinance’s operation and mitigate its harmful effects, including educating drivers about the 26 impact of unionization and hiring labor relations consultants and attorneys. And they face

1 imminent future injuries such as (i) forced disclosure of confidential driver lists; and (ii) forced
2 participation in the City’s collective-bargaining regime. These injuries are fairly traceable to the 3 Ordinance’s enforcement, and a favorable ruling from this Court will provide redress. The other
4 requirements of associational standing are met because this lawsuit is germane to the Chamber’s
5 purposes, and none of the Chamber’s claims—all of which are facial challenges seeking
6 prospective injunctive relief—requires the individual participation of the Chamber’s members.

7 Accordingly, this Court should reject the City’s request to delay this case until it may be 8 adjudicated only on an emergency basis and, instead, hold that this case is ripe for adjudication.

9 BACKGROUND

10 a. This suit challenges Seattle Ordinance 124968, which compels businesses that 11 contract with for-hire drivers to collectively bargain the terms of those contracts. The Chamber
12 alleges that the Ordinance is preempted by the Sherman Act and the National Labor Relations
13 Act and is inconsistent with state law. The Chamber is the world’s largest business association,
14 representing the interests of more than three million businesses. Decl. of Amanda Engstrom
15 Eversole ¶ 3. Its purpose is to advocate on behalf of its members for policies that create jobs and 16 promote economic growth. Id. ¶ 4.

17 The Chamber has members subject to the Ordinance. First, Chamber member Uber
18 Technologies, Inc., along with its wholly owned subsidiaries Uber USA, LLC and Rasier, LLC
19 (collectively, “Uber”), is a technology company that connects individuals looking for 20 transportation (“riders”) with independent transportation providers looking for passengers
21 (“drivers”). Decl. of Mitchel Matthews ¶ 3. Uber’s product is a smartphone application, the 22 Uber App, which allows riders and drivers to connect based on their location. Id. For-hire
23 drivers who use the Uber App to generate referrals are independent contractors, not Uber
24 employees. Id. ¶ 15–16. They use the Uber App to generate leads for their businesses. Id. ¶ 8.
25 Uber contracts with more than fifty for-hire drivers in the Seattle area. Id. ¶ 16.

26 Second, Chamber member Eastside for Hire (“Eastside”) provides dispatch services in

1 the Seattle area. Decl. of Samatar Guled ¶ 2. Eastside uses advertising and preexisting client
 2 bases to generate transportation requests from passengers, who call, text, or email to request a
 3 ride, and refers these requests to drivers via mobile data terminal. Id. ¶ 5. Eastside contracts
 4 with more than fifty drivers, who are independent contractors, not employees. Id. ¶¶ 4,7.

5 b. The Ordinance’s legislative sponsor, Seattle Councilmember Mike O’Brien,
 6 proposed the bill as “a plan to help independent contractors such as Uber drivers unionize in 7 pursuit of better working conditions and pay.” Daniel Beekman, City Council Member Says Let
 8 Uber Drivers Unionize, Seattle Times (Aug. 31, 2015), goo.gl/BybwbH. To craft the legislation, 9 O’Brien partnered with Teamsters Local 117, which had also been “providing assistance” to 10 Seattle’s App-Based Drivers Association. Id.; Decl. of Harry Korrell, Ex. H. Teamsters
 11 representatives frequently contacted O’Brien, other councilmembers, and the mayor’s office
 12 during the legislative process. Korrell Decl., Exs. A, C, D, E, F, G, H. Together, the “hard-13 charging union and . . . ambitious City Council member” designed the Ordinance specifically to 14 target “app-based ride-dispatch companies, including Uber and Lyft.”¹ Daniel Beekman, An 15 Uber Union? Seattle Could Clear Way For Ride-App Drivers, Seattle Times (Nov. 28, 2015), 16 goo.gl/oapjuV. O’Brien’s stated purpose was “to balance the playing field” between Uber and 17 “drivers making less than minimum wage.” Id. The Ordinance resulted from this coordinated 18 effort, and became law on January 22, 2016. See Mot. at 1 n.1.

19 The Ordinance requires “driver coordinators” to collectively bargain with “for-hire
 20 drivers.” Ordinance § 1(I). A “driver coordinator” is “an entity that hires, contracts with, or 21 partners with for-hire drivers for the purpose of assisting them with, or facilitating them in,
 22 providing for-hire services to the public.” Ordinance § 2. Driver coordinators include, but are 23 not limited to, “taxicab associations, for-hire vehicle companies, and transportation network
 24

25 ¹ Lyft, Inc., is a competing technology company that provides digital ride-referral
 26 services and contracts with more than fifty drivers in the Seattle area. Like Uber, Lyft’s product is a smartphone application that connects potential riders with for-hire drivers.

1 companies.” Id. A “transportation network company” is defined elsewhere in the City Code as
2 an organization that uses “an online-enabled . . . application or platform to connect passengers
3 with drivers using their personal vehicles.” Seattle Code § 6.310.110. The Ordinance does “not
4 apply to drivers who are employees” under the National Labor Relations Act. Ordinance § 6.
5 As such, it mandates collective bargaining for independent contractors, but not employees.

6 Certain requirements of the Ordinance go into effect automatically. For example, the 7 anti-retaliation provision, which takes effect on June 20, 2016, see id. § 5, decrees that a “driver
8 coordinator shall not retaliate against any for-hire driver for exercising the right to participate in”
9 collective bargaining, “or provide or offer to provide money or anything of value to any for-hire
10 driver with the intent of encouraging the for-hire driver to exercise, or to refrain from exercising, 11 that right.” Id. § 3(K). Defendant Director Fred Podesta, who is responsible for enforcing the 12 Ordinance, id. § 3(M)(1), may punish violations with a “daily penalty of up to $10,000.” Id.
13 § 3(M)(1)(d). “Any aggrieved party” may also sue for “all remedies available at law or in 14 equity,” as well as “attorney’s fees and costs.” Id. § 3(M)(3).

15 Other requirements are triggered by forthcoming required events. Within thirty days of 16 its “commencement date,” which the Director “shall” set between July 20 and September 18,
17 2016, id. at § 3(A), a union may notify the Director of its desire to represent for-hire drivers
18 within the City. Id. § 3(C). The Director has fourteen days to determine whether to designate
19 that union as a “Qualified Driver Representative” (QDR). Id. § 3(C); see also id. § 3(B) 20 (designation based on, inter alia, applicant’s non-profit status, membership bylaws, and 21 experience in or commitment to collective bargaining). Once designated as a QDR, the union
22 has fourteen days to notify any driver coordinator whose drivers the union wishes to represent 23 that it intends to become the “Exclusive Driver Representative” (EDR) for those drivers. Id.
24 § 3(C)(2). The union’s notice triggers the Ordinance’s mandatory disclosure provision, which 25 requires the driver coordinator within seventy-five days of the commencement date to provide 26 the union with “the names, addresses, email addresses (if available), and phone number (if

1 available) of all qualifying drivers they hire, contract with, or partner with.” Id. § 3(D); see also
 2 id. (disclosure requirement applies to driver coordinators who contracted with “50 or more for-
 3 hire drivers in the 30 days prior” to the commencement date). QDRs are authorized to use this
 4 contact information to conduct a “card check”-style organizing campaign, i.e., to contact drivers
 5 to solicit their interest in being represented by the QDR. See id. § 3(E).

6 If a majority of the drivers for a driver coordinator provide statements of interest
 7 indicating support for the QDR, the Director must certify the union as the EDR. Id. § 3(F). (If 8 no EDR is certified for a particular driver coordinator, the union may reinstate the process every 9 twelve months. Id. § 3(G).) The driver coordinator must then “meet and negotiate in good faith”
 10 with the EDR over the terms and conditions of its contracts with for-hire drivers, id. § 3(H), and,
 11 if no agreement is reached, must submit to binding arbitration, id. § 3(I).

12 ARGUMENT

13 I. THE CHAMBER HAS ASSOCIATIONAL STANDING

14 An association has standing to bring suit on behalf of its members when (A) “its 15 members would otherwise have standing to sue in their own right”; (B) “the interests it seeks to 16 protect are germane to the organization’s purpose”; and (C) “neither the claim asserted nor the 17 relief requested requires the participation of individual members in the lawsuit.” Hunt v. Wash.
 18 State Apple Advert. Comm’n, 432 U.S. 333, 343 (1977). The Chamber satisfies these criteria.

19 A. Several Of The Chamber’s Members Have Standing To Bring This Suit

20 The Chamber has several members, including Uber, Eastside, and Q for Hire, who are 21 subject to the Ordinance’s driver-disclosure and collective-bargaining requirements. See supra
 22 pp. 2–3; Eversole Decl. ¶ 5. Thus even assuming that the Chamber must identify any injured
 23 members by name, as Defendants contend (Mot. at 18–19), the Chamber has timely done so. See 24 Warth v. Seldin, 422 U.S. 490, 501–02 (1975).

25 Defendants assert that even companies subject to the Ordinance lack standing to sue in 26 their own right and that the claims are not ripe. Standing and ripeness “originate from the same

1 Article III limitation,” and both issues “in this case boil down to the same question”—whether
 2 the Chamber has alleged that its members are subject to an actual or imminent injury. Susan B.
 3 Anthony List v. Driehaus, 134 S. Ct. 2334, 2341, 2341 n.5 (2014) (quotation marks omitted).
 4 Indeed, Defendants restate the same arguments in challenging both standing and ripeness.
 5 Compare Mot. at 8, with id. at 14. Consistent with the Supreme Court’s frequent practice, the 6 Chamber “use[es] the term ‘standing’” in this brief. Susan B. Anthony List, 134 S. Ct. at 2341
 7 n.5. By either name, Defendants’ arguments fail.

8 “To establish Article III standing, a plaintiff must show (1) an ‘injury in fact,’ (2) a
 9 sufficient ‘causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained of,’ and (3) a
 10 ‘likel[i]hood’ that the injury ‘will be redressed by a favorable decision.’” Id. at 2341 (quoting
 11 Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560–61 (1992)). To defeat a motion to dismiss, a 12 plaintiff may demonstrate standing through “general factual allegations” in the pleadings or 13 specific factual affidavits. Lujan, 504 U.S. at 561. The Chamber’s members meet all three 14 elements. Most importantly, they are facing both ongoing, actual injuries and future injuries that 15 are certainly impending and pose a substantial risk of harm. Each injury alone is sufficient to 16 support standing. Each is also traceable to Defendants and redressable by a favorable ruling.

17 1. The Chamber’s Members Are Currently Suffering Injury And Face A
 18 Substantial Risk Of Future Injury

19 A plaintiff must allege an injury that is “actual or imminent, not conjectural or 20 hypothetical.” Susan B. Anthony List, 134 S. Ct. at 2341 (quotation marks omitted). “[O]ne does 21 not have to await the consummation of threatened injury to obtain preventive relief.” Babbitt v.
 22 United Farm Workers Nat’l Union, 442 U.S. 289, 298 (1979). A future injury suffices “if the 23 threatened injury is certainly impending, or there is a substantial risk that the harm will occur.”
 24 Susan B. Anthony List, 134 S. Ct. at 2341 (quotation marks omitted).

25 Two types of injury support standing here. First, the Chamber’s members are currently 26 incurring actual, ongoing injuries. These include (i) coerced compliance with the Ordinance’s

1 anti-retaliation provision, and (ii) the members’ reasonable expenditures to prepare for the 2 operation of the Ordinance, such as educating drivers about the impact of unionization,
 3 participating in rulemaking, and hiring consultants and attorneys for assistance with union
 4 organizing and the collective-bargaining process. Second, the Chamber’s members face
 5 imminent future injuries, including (i) forced disclosure of confidential commercial information
 6 and (ii) forced participation in the City’s collective-bargaining regime.

7 (a) Present Harms

8 i. Prohibition of non-unionization clauses. To protect its business from the burdens
 9 of the Ordinance, Eastside wishes to amend its driver contracts to require drivers to decline union
 10 representation for the purpose of collective bargaining. Guled Decl. ¶ 11. Eastside has refrained
 11 from doing so because the Ordinance arguably prohibits such clauses: it mandates that “a driver
 12 coordinator shall not retaliate against any for-hire driver” nor “provide or offer to provide money
 13 or anything of value” to encourage the “driver to exercise, or to refrain from exercising”
 14 collective-bargaining rights under the Ordinance. Ordinance § 3(K); Guled Decl. ¶ 11. These 15 are precisely the circumstances giving an entity standing to obtain pre-enforcement review.

16 Prior to challenging a law, a plaintiff need not “first expose himself to actual arrest or 17 prosecution,” Babbitt, 442 U.S. at 298, “administrative action threatening sanctions,” Ohio Civil 18 Rights Comm’n v. Dayton Christian Sch., Inc., 477 U.S. 619, 625 n.1 (1986), or “civil fines and 19 private enforcement actions,” Bland v. Fessler, 88 F.3d 729, 737 (9th Cir. 1996). Rather, a 20 plaintiff has standing to bring a pre-enforcement suit if it “has alleged an intention to engage in a 21 course of conduct” that is “arguably . . . proscribed by” the challenged law but also “arguably”
 22 protected or lawful, “and there exists a credible threat of prosecution.” Susan B. Anthony List,
 23 134 S. Ct. at 2342 (quoting Babbitt, 442 U.S. at 298); see also MedImmune, Inc. v. Genentech,
 24 Inc., 549 U.S. 118, 128–29 (2007) (“[W]e do not require a plaintiff to expose himself to liability
 25 before bringing suit to challenge the basis for [threatened government action].”). The Chamber’s
 26 members satisfy each of these conditions.

1 First, the Chamber has alleged its member’s “intention to engage in a course of conduct”
2 that is “arguably ... proscribed by” the Ordinance. Susan B. Anthony List, 134 S. Ct. at 2343–44
3 (quoting Babbitt, 442 U.S. at 298); see also Compl. ¶ 46. Chamber member Eastside wishes to
4 include non-unionization provisions in its driver contracts. Guled Decl. ¶ 11. The Ordinance
5 arguably bars these provisions because it prohibits promising a driver anything of value to refrain
6 from exercising collective-bargaining rights, and because enforcing a non-unionization contract
7 is arguably a retaliatory act. Indeed, Defendants have asserted that, under the Ordinance, the 8 Chamber’s “members have no right to demand [non-unionization] agreements.” Mot. at 10 n.4.

9 Second, adopting the non-unionization provisions is “arguably” protected or lawful
10 because, as the Complaint alleges, the Ordinance is arguably preempted by the Sherman Act and 11 the NLRA and inconsistent with state law. Thus, but for the unlawful Ordinance, Eastside would 12 have the right to insist upon including these provisions in its driver contracts.

13 Third, the threat that the Ordinance will be enforced is “substantial,” and not “imaginary
14 or wholly speculative,” because Defendants have refused to disavow its enforcement. Susan B.
15 Anthony List, 134 S. Ct. at 2343. In Babbitt, a labor union challenged an Arizona statute that 16 made it an unfair labor practice to “induce or encourage” agricultural purchases through 17 “dishonest, untruthful and deceptive publicity.” 442 U.S. at 301. The union argued that to avoid 18 prosecution it had to refrain from engaging in publicity campaigns, but the government
19 responded that the provision had “not yet been applied and may never be applied to commissions 20 of unfair labor practices.” Id. at 301–02. The Court rejected the government’s claim, explaining 21 that enforcement was not “imaginary or wholly speculative” because “the State ha[d] not
22 disavowed any intention of invoking the criminal penalty provision against unions that commit
23 unfair labor practices.” Id. The Supreme Court has repeatedly reaffirmed that conclusion. E.g., 24 Holder v. Humanitarian Law Project, 561 U.S. 1, 16 (2010) (“The Government has not argued 25 ... that plaintiffs will not be prosecuted if they do what they say they wish to do.”); Virginia v.
26 Am. Booksellers Ass’n, 484 U.S. 383, 393 (1988) (“The State has not suggested that the newly

1 enacted law will not be enforced, and we see no reason to assume otherwise.”).

2 Defendants have “not disavowed any intention” of enforcement. Babbitt, 442 U.S. at 302.
 3 To the contrary, they are willing only to state that “the City will provide an opportunity to correct
 4 any violation before imposing penalties.” Mot. at 16–17. But forcing Eastside to “correct any 5 violation” by abandoning non-unionization contracts does nothing to dispel the injury.
 6 Defendants have actually affirmed that they do intend to compel the Chamber’s members—
 7 through threat of government sanctions of up to $10,000 per day—to comply with the anti-
 8 retaliation provision. Further, the Ordinance authorizes private plaintiffs to sue for damages, and 9 the City cannot control those suits.²

10 Defendants’ contrary arguments are unpersuasive. They first contend that the Chamber’s
 11 members lack standing because they are “voluntarily complying with the anti-retaliation 12 provisions of the Ordinance.” Mot. at 9. To the contrary, because non-compliance will result in 13 government sanctions, Eastside’s actions are not “voluntary.” A plaintiff does not lack standing 14 where he fails to “eliminat[e] the imminent threat of harm by simply not doing what he claimed 15 the right to do”—such as “enter into a lease” or enter into a non-unionization contract—because 16 “the threat-eliminating behavior [is] effectively coerced.” MedImmune, 549 U.S. at 129.
 17 Defendants cannot defeat standing by placing Eastside “between the rock of foregoing” their 18 non-unionization contracts and “the hard place of violating the law.” Bland, 88 F.3d at 737.

19 Similarly, Defendants’ assertion that “[i]ntent to violate the law is not a cognizable
 20 Article III injury,” Mot. at 16, is wrong. To argue standing separately from the merits,

21
 22 ² It makes no difference that the anti-retaliation provision does not go into effect until 23 June 20, 2016. See Ordinance § 5. Eastside wishes to adopt non-unionization clauses now and 24 allow them to remain in effect after June 20, Guled Decl. ¶ 11, and will be subject to 25 enforcement actions based on the contractual clauses at that time. This “inevitability of the 26 operation of” the Ordinance means “it is irrelevant to the existence of a justiciable controversy that there will be a time delay before the [Ordinance] will come into effect.” *Reg’l Rail
 Reorganization Act Cases*, 419 U.S. 102, 143 (1974); *see also Arizona v. Atchison, Topeka &
 Santa Fe R.R.*, 656 F.2d 398, 402–03 (9th Cir. 1981) (challenge to statute ripe six months before its effective date).

1 Defendants must assume that the Chamber’s legal claim would succeed. On that assumption,
2 Eastside does not wish to violate the law; it wishes to enter into a lawful contract that is being
3 blocked by threat of unlawful government action. That is a classic Article III injury.

4 Defendants next contend that the Chamber’s members “do not face any specific threat of 5 prosecution.” Mot. at 16, 9–10. But the cases on which Defendants rely, including Thomas v.
6 Anchorage Equal Rights Commission, 220 F.3d 1134, 1137 (9th Cir. 1999) (en banc), and San
7 Diego County Gun Rights Committee v. Reno, 98 F.3d 1121 (9th Cir. 1996), do not apply here.

8 In Thomas, landlords challenged an Alaska housing law prohibiting discrimination due to 9 marital status. 220 F.3d at 1137. They failed to “specify when, to whom, where, or under what 10 circumstances” they would engage in prohibited discrimination. Id. at 1139. Not surprisingly,
11 there had been no “hint of future enforcement,” id. at 1140, and “the principal enforcement 12 agencies had never even heard of [the] landlords before they filed [the] action,” id. at 1137.
13 Indeed, the record did “not indicate even a single criminal prosecution” during “the twenty-five 14 years that [the] housing laws ha[d] been on the books.” Id. at 1140.

15 And in San Diego County Gun Rights Committee, plaintiffs challenged the federal Crime
16 Control Act of 1994, which imposed new requirements for receiving federal firearms licenses.
17 98 F.3d at 1124. The plaintiffs alleged “that they ‘wish[ed] and intend[ed]’ to engage in 18 unspecified conduct prohibited” by the statute. Id. But they never alleged any specific statutory 19 violation, nor a “particular time or date” on which they wished to take the unspecified actions.
20 Id. at 1127. Nor was there any evidence that the statute would be enforced against them; they 21 could “not identify even a general threat” of prosecution made against them. Id.

22 The difference between those cases and this one is stark: Chamber member Eastside has 23 specifically stated that it would like to require all drivers to sign non-unionization agreements
24 now. Guled Decl. ¶ 11. Defendants’ own motion threatens enforcement if Eastside were to do
25 so. See supra p. 9. Moreover, the anti-retaliation provision is enforceable by a private cause of 26 action, Ordinance §3(M)(3), and it strains credulity to suggest that the Teamsters would not bring

1 an action challenging contractual provisions barring drivers from supporting unionization.
2 Finally, the history of the Ordinance renders fanciful any claim that it will not be enforced
3 against the Chamber’s members. This is not a situation in which a twenty-five-year-old law has 4 never been enforced or an even older law has fallen into desuetude. Nor is this a nationwide law
5 that may be enforced to varying degrees by different U.S. Attorneys. This is a municipal law
6 enacted for the purpose of bringing immediate change to the for-hire industry.

7 Thus, rather than bearing any similarity to Thomas and San Diego, this case comfortably
8 falls within the many cases in which the Ninth Circuit has allowed pre-enforcement challenges.
9 See, e.g., Valle del Sol, Inc. v. Whiting, 732 F.3d 1006, 1015–16 & 1015 n.5 (9th Cir. 2013)
10 (allowing pre-enforcement challenge to Arizona law absent direct threat of prosecution, because 11 the court has “never held that a specific threat is necessary to demonstrate standing”); Cal. Pro-
12 Life Council, Inc. v. Getman, 328 F.3d 1088, 1094 (9th Cir. 2003) (allowing pre-enforcement 13 challenge to California statute absent “threat” or “warning” of enforcement, because “Thomas
14 did not purport to overrule years of Ninth Circuit and Supreme Court precedent recognizing the 15 validity of pre-enforcement challenges”); Bland, 88 F.3d at 737 (allowing pre-enforcement
16 challenge to California statute because “[t]he Attorney General of California ha[d] not stated 17 affirmatively that his office [would] not enforce the civil statute”).

18 Finally, Defendants assert that the non-unionization agreements “are in any event legally 19 meaningless,” Mot. at 17, because “there is no reason for its members to procure such 20 agreements” if the Ordinance is preempted, and if the Ordinance is lawful “then its members
21 have no right to demand” them, id. at 10 n.4. Yet even if the Ordinance is unlawful, it would not
22 make the non-unionization agreements “legally meaningless.” Mot. at 17. They would be valid,
23 private contractual agreements, and Defendants provide no legal argument or support to the 24 contrary. Regardless of whether the Ordinance is eventually invalidated or upheld, Eastside 25 wishes to immediately adopt non-unionization provisions, and the threat of enforcement of the 26 unlawful Ordinance has “effectively coerced” it from doing so. MedImmune, 549 U.S. at 129.

1 And there is nothing wrong with proactively preventing unionization among drivers, rather than 2 litigating preemption or other legal flaws in the Ordinance on a case-by-case basis. That is 3 sufficient for standing.

4 ii. Current expenditures. A plaintiff also has standing when it “reasonably incur[s]
 5 costs to mitigate or avoid” a “substantial risk” of injury. Clapper v. Amnesty Int’l USA, 133 S.
 6 Ct. 1138, 1150 n.5 (2013); accord Mendia v. Garcia, 768 F.3d 1009, 1013 n.1 (9th Cir. 2014).
 7 Here, the Chamber’s members are already spending substantial time, money, and resources to 8 reasonably prepare for the Ordinance’s “operation” and “enforcement.” Babbitt, 442 U.S. at 298.

9 First, the Ordinance grants unions the right to seek majority support for collective 10 bargaining among drivers with a company. Ordinance § 3(B)–(F). At the same time, the 11 Chamber’s members have a “First Amendment right” to “engage in noncoercive speech about 12 unionization” and “attempt[] to persuade” those drivers “not to join a union.” Chamber of 13 Commerce v. Brown, 554 U.S. 60, 66–67 (2008). Eastside has begun to exercise this right in 14 anticipation of forthcoming organizing efforts, by contacting drivers to educate them about the 15 drawbacks of exclusive union representation, Guled Decl. ¶ 12, and Uber intends to educate
 16 drivers about the impact of unionization, Matthews Decl. ¶ 19. Second, as companies that have 17 not previously had to deal with union campaigns and organized labor—because their drivers are 18 independent contractors, not employees—the Chamber’s members will need to hire attorneys 19 and consultants to assist them with their obligations under the Ordinance. Matthews Decl. ¶ 17;
 20 Guled Decl. ¶ 12. Uber, in particular, has already expended, and continues to expend, substantial 21 time and resources engaging costly experts to advise Uber about navigating the collective-22 bargaining process, and recruiting and hiring personnel to serve as permanent staff members.
 23 Matthews Decl. ¶ 19. Third, Uber and Eastside are also currently devoting substantial resources
 24 to participating in the City’s rulemaking efforts. See Matthews Decl. ¶ 18; Guled Decl. ¶ 10.

25 These business expenditures, taken to avoid or mitigate the Ordinance’s harmful
 26 consequences, are sufficient injuries to support Article III standing. The expenditures are

1 reasonable because they are a fitting “reaction to a risk of harm”—namely, a union organizing
2 campaign—that is imminent and certainly impending. Clapper, 133 S. Ct. at 1151; see also
3 infra pp. 16–17 (discussing imminence of organizing campaign). Moreover, it is reasonable—
4 indeed, necessary—for the Chamber’s members to undertake these activities now, before a QDR
5 is designated, because drivers can sign a statement of interest at any time after a QDR is 6 designated (there is no voting date) and the City has provided no mechanism to revoke those
7 authorizations. See Ordinance § 3(F). A Chamber member that delays contacting drivers until a
8 QDR is designated thus risks losing the opportunity to persuade those drivers to vote against
9 unionization. Indeed, Teamsters representatives have already been contacting drivers, Korrell
10 Decl., Exs. B, J, making it even more urgent for the Chamber’s members to do the same.

11 Defendants insist that these injuries do not support standing because they are self-
12 inflicted and voluntary. Mot. at 9–10, 15–16. But they are inflicted by dint of the Ordinance and 13 would not be necessary but for its enactment. Regardless, “voluntary” measures can certainly 14 support Article III standing. For example, in Monsanto Co. v. Geertson Seed Farms, 561 U.S.
15 139 (2010), conventional alfalfa farmers challenged an agency’s decision to deregulate
16 genetically engineered alfalfa, id. at 153. They argued that deregulation would cause a 17 “substantial risk” of genetic contamination, so they would “need to test [their] crops for the 18 presence of genetically engineered alfalfa seed,” and had already “begun contracting with 19 growers outside of the United States” to ensure a genetically pure seed supply. Id. at 154–55.
20 These “self inflicted” injuries were “sufficiently concrete” for standing, “even if [the] crops
21 [were] not actually” contaminated. Id. at 155; see also, e.g., Friends of Earth, Inc. v. Laidlaw
22 Env’tl Servs. (TOC), Inc., 528 U.S. 167, 181–82 (2000) (voluntarily refraining from swimming, 23 camping, and bird-watching for fear of exposure to mercury was sufficient injury); Meese v.
24 Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 473 (1987) (voluntarily refraining from exhibiting a film because 25 government declared it political propaganda was sufficient injury).

26 Cases rejecting voluntary actions as sufficient for standing have done so because the

1 plaintiffs responded to potential injuries that were speculative, and their protective measures
 2 against speculative harms were therefore not directly traceable to the defendants. In Clapper, for 3 example, the plaintiffs’ measures taken to avoid phone surveillance were based on a “highly
 4 speculative fear” that the government would monitor the plaintiffs’ calls using the procedures
 5 authorized under the challenged wiretapping program. 133 S. Ct. at 1148. Thus, the problem in 6 Clapper was that “the harm respondents [sought] to avoid [was] not certainly impending,” id. at 7 1151, especially considering that the surveillance program did not regulate the plaintiffs, id. at 8 1153. The Court made clear that standing requirements are satisfied when plaintiffs “reasonably
 9 incur costs to mitigate or avoid” a “substantial risk” of injury. Id. at 1150 n.5.³ The same is true
 10 in other similar cases. See, e.g., Mendia, 768 F.3d at 1013 n.1 (decision to remain in custody
 11 was self-inflicted because there was no “substantial risk” of future harm if plaintiff left state
 12 custody); Nat’l Family Planning & Reproductive Health Ass’n, Inc. v. Gonzales, 468 F.3d 826, 13 831 (D.C. Cir. 2006) (injury was self-inflicted because plaintiff had “within its grasp an easy 14 means for alleviating the alleged” injury by asking an administrative agency for a clarifying rule).
 15 Unlike those cases, the actions the Chamber’s members have taken are “a reasonable reaction to 16 a risk of harm,” Clapper, 133 S. Ct. at 1151, because the Ordinance regulates, constrains, and 17 compels the Chamber’s members to participate in unionization efforts and collectively bargain
 18 with for-hire drivers, events that are certainly impending.

19 (b) Substantial Risk of Future Injury

20 i. Mandatory disclosure provision. The Chamber’s members are also subject to 21 imminent injury because they will soon be required to disclose “the names, addresses, email
 22 addresses (if available), and phone number (if available) of all qualifying drivers they hire,
 23 contract with, or partner with.” Ordinance § 3(D). Uber and Eastside are subject to the 24 disclosure requirement because each contracts with “50 or more for-hire drivers,” id., and will

25 _____
 26 ³ Clapper analyzed this issue as one of traceability. 133 S. Ct. at 1150–52. But the outcome is the same whether the issue is framed as traceability or injury.

1 continue to do so, Matthews Decl. ¶ 16; Guled Decl. ¶ 4. This coerced disclosure is an Article
2 III injury in its own right. See, e.g., Davis v. FEC, 554 U.S. 724, 733 (2008) (standing to
3 challenge mandatory campaign disclosures); NAACP v. Patterson, 357 U.S. 449, 458–59 (1958)
4 (standing to challenge compelled disclosure of association’s membership lists). Even more 5 concretely here, complying with the disclosure requirement will require these members to 6 expend substantial time and resources to ensure that the correct information is disclosed, and that
7 no privileged or protected information is produced. Matthews Decl. ¶ 20; Guled Decl. ¶ 13.

8 Moreover, these driver lists contain confidential information that the Chamber’s members
9 maintain as a trade secret. Id. Uber’s driver lists, for example, are highly valuable and would be 10 of great interest to its competitors. Matthews Decl. ¶ 20. Because drivers pay a service fee to 11 use the Uber App, drivers are customers of Uber, so production of this information would reveal
12 a closely guarded customer list. Id. Uber has only released similar lists to service providers
13 under agreements with extensive privacy and security obligations. Id. Further, the drivers
14 whose names would appear on this list under the Ordinance are entitled to privacy and expect
15 that Uber will safeguard their names and contact information. Id. If the Ordinance is enforced,
16 the Chamber’s members will lose the value of this intellectual property—an injury sufficient for 17 Article III standing. Already, LLC v. Nike, Inc., 133 S. Ct. 721, 727 (2013).

18 Defendants do not dispute that the required disclosure of driver information constitutes an 19 injury for standing purposes, but contend that this injury is speculative because the disclosure
20 requirement will be triggered only if a union seeks to become a QDR, the Director approves, and 21 the union then requests driver lists from a member subject to the Ordinance. Mot. at 8, 14. But 22 so long as the risk of injury is genuine and realistic, rather than speculative and imaginary, the 23 “substantial risk” standard does not require a plaintiff to prove with absolute certainty that future
24 injury will occur or that no contingencies exist that might affect the injury. Susan B. Anthony
25 List, 134 S. Ct. at 2342 (“sufficiently imminent”); Babbitt, 442 U.S. at 298 (“realistic danger”);
26 MedImmune, 549 U.S. at 129 (“genuine threat”); see also supra note 2.

1 The Ordinance’s operation is neither speculative nor imaginary; it is substantially certain
2 to occur. First, the Teamsters Local Union No. 117 (or an affiliated entity) is substantially
3 certain to seek designation as a Qualified Driver Representative. Local 117 was a driving force
4 behind enactment of Ordinance. See supra p. 3. Representatives from Local 117 frequently
5 contacted the City Council and Mayor’s office during the drafting and enactment of the 6 Ordinance, urging the City to take “swift action” to authorize collective bargaining for “Uber and 7 Lyft” drivers. See supra p. 3. And Local 117 has already been assisting drivers on the Uber
8 platform in organizing meetings with public officials “about the policies that [a]ffect their ability
9 to make a living and succeed in today’s rapidly changing transportation environment.” Korrell
10 Decl., Ex. L; see also Exs. A, B, I, J. Further, there is no doubt that Local 117 meets the minimal
11 statutory requirements for certification as a QDR: it is registered with the Washington Secretary
12 of State as a not-for-profit entity; its bylaws give drivers the right to be members and participate
13 in elections; and it has experience in and a commitment to collective bargaining, see Teamsters
14 117 Registration Page, Wash. Sec’y of State, goo.gl/RTw12j; Union Search, U.S. Dep’t of Labor,
15 goo.gl/wMufaV. See also Davis, 554 U.S. at 733–34 (candidate has standing to challenge statute
16 giving opponent right to additional contributions where, “[w]hen [plaintiff] filed suit,” “there 17 was no indication that his opponent would forgo that opportunity”).

18 Second, Defendants have refused to say they will not implement the Ordinance or 19 designate a QDR. Compl. ¶ 43. To the contrary, Defendants have stated they expect the 20 disclosure provision to be triggered no later than December 2, 2016. Carey Decl. ¶ 3.
21 Defendants cannot now plausibly contend that no QDR will be designated, and that they expect
22 this recently enacted Ordinance never to take effect. After all, the successful business operations
23 of Uber and Lyft are the primary reason why the City enacted the Ordinance. The entire goal, 24 according to Councilmember O’Brien, was to “balance the playing field” between Uber and 25 “drivers making less than minimum wage.” Beekman, An Uber Union?, supra p. 3. This newly 26 enacted Ordinance is the product of intense efforts by the City and the Teamsters over the last

1 year, aimed directly at the Chamber’s members. Indeed, after filing their motion to dismiss,
 2 Defendants requested that the Chamber’s members turn over certain driver and trip data so that
 3 the City could begin drafting rules that would implement the Ordinance. Matthews Decl. ¶ 18;
 4 Guled Decl. ¶ 10. These efforts belie Defendants’ disingenuous claim that the Ordinance would 5 have no effect against its primary targets.

6 The supposed contingencies in this case are no greater than in other cases in which the 7 Ninth Circuit has found standing. In City of Oakland v. Lynch, the court held that a city had 8 standing to challenge a federal forfeiture action because revenues would be lost if forfeiture were 9 ordered; the “uncertain[ty]” of the forfeiture order was “not so speculative” as to undermine 10 standing. 798 F.3d 1159, 1164 (9th Cir. 2015). And in Alaska Airlines, Inc. v. City of Long
 11 Beach, the court held that airlines had standing to challenge an ordinance authorizing an airport
 12 manager to require airlines to reduce flights if they exceeded certain noise levels even though the 13 airport manager had not yet cut off any flights because “the threat of action [was] very real.”
 14 951 F.2d 977, 987 (9th Cir. 1991) (per curiam). Likewise, the operation and enforcement of the 15 Ordinance creates a sufficiently imminent threat that the Chamber’s members—the Ordinance’s
 16 targets—will be injured through compelled disclosure of their confidential driver lists.⁴

17 ii. Mandatory collective bargaining. Finally, the Chamber’s members are subject to 18 imminent injury through compelled participation in the City’s collective-bargaining scheme and 19 forced adherence to a collective-bargaining agreement. For the same reasons discussed above
 20 concerning compelled disclosure of driver lists, this injury is imminent and not speculative—
 21 after all, the primary goal of the Ordinance is to require companies like Uber and Lyft to

22 ⁴ Defendants also contend that, because a party must demonstrate standing for each of its 23 claims, this injury “allow[s] the Chamber to challenge only the disclosure provision of the 24 Ordinance.” Mot. at 24. But the disclosure provision and the collective-bargaining provisions 25 are inextricably interrelated: the only permitted use of the driver lists is union organizing, see
 26 Ordinance § 3(E), and an EDR cannot be qualified for collective bargaining absent a driver list, see id. § 3(F). The disclosure provision is thus invalid for all the same reasons the collective-bargaining provisions are invalid, and the imminent threat of forced disclosure therefore gives the Chamber standing to pursue each of its claims.

1 collectively bargain with for-hire drivers.

2 2. These Injuries Are Traceable To The Defendants And Redressable
 3 Through A Favorable Ruling From This Court

4 Defendants' arguments concerning traceability and redressability fare no better. A 5 plaintiff must show "a causal connection between the injury and the [challenged] conduct," and
 6 that it is "likely" "the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision." Lujan, 504 U.S. at 560–
 7 61. Here, Defendants' enforcement of the Ordinance will cause the alleged injuries. If the 8 Ordinance were not enforced, the Chamber's members would not suffer their asserted injuries.
 9 Further, declaratory and injunctive relief can prevent Defendants from enforcing the Ordinance.

10 Defendants argue that these injuries are not traceable to them or redressable by this Court
 11 because "the Chamber itself alleges that the question whether these drivers are employees under 12 the NLRA is an open one." Mot. at 17. That is incorrect, and based on a mischaracterization of 13 the Chamber's preemption arguments. The companies that are the targets of the Ordinance have 14 consistently maintained that drivers are independent contractors, and the Chamber agrees.
 15 Compl. ¶¶ 19–20, 44, 105; Guled Decl. ¶ 7; Matthews Decl. ¶ 15; see also Narayanan v. British 16 Airways, 747 F.3d 1125, 1126 n.1 (9th Cir. 2014) (on motion to dismiss, "all factual allegations
 17 set forth in the complaint are taken as true and construed in the light most favorable to 18 Plaintiffs").

19 It is true, however, that at least some litigants contend that drivers with companies such 20 as Uber are arguably employees. See Matthews Decl. ¶ 15. But even if some might believe they 21 are arguably employees, that says nothing about whether the injuries alleged in this case are 22 traceable to Defendants. Defendants are the ones causing injury now, by attempting to enforce 23 the Ordinance's requirements as to individuals who are presently classified, and treated by the 24 Chamber's members, as independent contractors. Stated differently, the Chamber's members 25 would not be incurring the expenses or be at risk of the injuries described above absent the 26 Ordinance, and those expenses and risks will be eliminated if the Court enjoins the Ordinance.

1 B. The Chamber’s Purpose Is To Advance The Interests At Issue In This Suit

2 The interests at issue in this lawsuit are at the heart of the Chamber’s purpose “to 3 represent the interests of its members and the overall business community in order to promote 4 and strengthen American free enterprise.” Eversole Decl. ¶ 3. This suit advances these precise
5 interests, seeking to strengthen free enterprise by increasing competition among independent
6 contractors, ensuring uniform labor policy, and protecting the privacy and value of growing
7 businesses. The relief requested is necessary to nurture the advancement of new technology,
8 protect businesses’ stability and viability, and support a growing sector of the economy.

9 C. This Suit Does Not Require The Participation Of The Chamber’s Members

10 Of course, the Chamber’s identification of members to establish particularized 11 injury does not establish that the participation of those members is necessary to adjudicate the 12 Chamber’s specific claims. As the Supreme Court has made clear, “‘individual participation’ is 13 not normally necessary when an association seeks prospective or injunctive relief for its 14 members.” United Food & Commercial Workers v. Brown Group, Inc., 517 U.S. 544, 546
15 (1996) (quoting Hunt, 432 U.S. at 343). And nothing takes this suit for prospective injunctive
16 and declaratory relief outside that general rule.

17 “Neither [the Chamber’s] claims nor the relief sought require[s] the District Court to 18 consider the individual circumstances of any aggrieved . . . member.” Auto. Workers v. Brock, 19 477 U.S. 274, 287 (1986). Each of the Chamber’s claims raises a “pure question of law,” and the 20 Chamber can prove entitlement to the relief sought without substantial “individualized proof.”
21 Id. Moreover, the remedies that the Chamber seeks, “if granted, will inure to the benefit of those 22 members of the association actually injured.” Id. at 288. Because participation of the Chamber’s
23 individual members is unnecessary, the Chamber has standing to bring this suit.

24 Defendants acknowledge as much with respect to several of the Chamber’s claims. They 25 concede, as they must, that the Chamber satisfies this prong of associational standing with 26 respect to its claims for Machinists preemption and ultra vires action under state law. Mot. at

1 20–24. At an absolute minimum, then, those claims could proceed now. But the Defendants’
2 arguments that the Chamber’s remaining claims are not fit for resolution without individual
3 participation are meritless, and those claims, too, should be resolved now.

4 1. Individual participation is unnecessary for the antitrust claims

5 Defendants err in asserting that participation of the Chamber’s individual members is 6 required for the Chamber’s federal and state antitrust claims. Defendants contend that only a 7 party “threatened [with] loss or damage” may bring a federal antitrust claim for injunctive relief,
8 see Clayton Antitrust Act § 16, 15 U.S.C. § 26, and that only a “person who is injured in his or 9 her business or property” may bring a state antitrust claim, see Wash. Rev. Code § 19.86.090.
10 These claims, Defendants argue, require individualized proof, and thus individual member
11 participation. Defendants also assert, in the alternative, that the statutory requirement that 12 federal antitrust plaintiffs show “antitrust injury” means that antitrust claims must be brought by 13 the party who has actually suffered antitrust injury, rather than an associational representative.

14 For one thing, Defendants’ argument—based on specific language in the Sherman Act
15 and the state antitrust statute—is wholly inapplicable to the Chamber’s federal and state
16 preemption claims. Those preemption claims are not statutory causes of action; rather, they 17 invoke this Court’s equitable authority under Ex Parte Young, 209 U.S. 123, 155–56 (1908), to 18 enjoin the enforcement of local enactments preempted by federal law, and its similar authority
19 under state law to enjoin a municipal ordinance or declare it preempted, see, e.g., Cannabis
20 Action Coal. v. City of Kent, 351 P.3d 151, 154 (Wash. 2015).

21 Moreover, even with respect to the Chamber’s separate claim for injunctive relief under 22 the Clayton Act, Defendants’ position is not the law. Courts routinely hold that associations
23 have standing under the Clayton Act so long as they satisfy Hunt’s associational standing
24 requirements. See, e.g., S.W. Suburban Bd. of Realtors, Inc. v. Beverly Area Planning Ass’n, 25 830 F.2d 1374, 1380 (7th Cir. 1987) (citing cases); Nat’l Constructors Ass’n v. Nat’l Elec.
26 Contractors Ass’n, Inc., 498 F. Supp. 510, 515 (D. Md. 1980), aff’d as modified, 678 F.2d 492

1 (4th Cir. 1982). These holdings make perfect sense because there is nothing unique about the
 2 antitrust context. An associational plaintiff must always show, to establish standing, that one (or
 3 more) of its members has suffered (or will imminently suffer) injury, see Warth, 422 U.S. at 511,
 4 and the language like that on which Defendants rely is routine in statutes creating a cause of 5 action, see, e.g., 42 U.S.C. § 1983; 5 U.S.C. § 702; 33 U.S.C. § 1365(a), (g). The “antitrust 6 injury” requirement simply means that the members’ injury must be of a particular type;
 7 individual participation is unnecessary to resolve that purely legal issue.⁵

8 2. Individual participation is unnecessary for the Garmon claim

9 Defendants are incorrect that the Garmon preemption claim requires proof that individual
 10 members contract with drivers who are arguably NLRA “employees.” The Chamber is not
 11 claiming that the Ordinance cannot be enforced against any particular member that is arguably
 12 employing drivers. Rather, the claim is that the Ordinance is categorically unenforceable—as to 13 anyone—because it tasks local officials and state courts, rather than the federal agency charged
 14 with interpreting the NLRA, with defining the contours of one of the essential terms of the Act:
 15 “employee.” See Ordinance § 6 (“The provisions of this Ordinance do not apply to drivers who 16 are employees under 29 U.S.C. § 152(3).”). And that necessarily injects city officials and state
 17 courts into the business of declaring what the NLRA means. See Marine Eng’rs v. Interlake S.S.
 18 Co., 370 U.S. 173, 180 (1962). This claim presents a “pure question of law” that requires no
 19 consideration of any of the Chamber’s members particular factual circumstances, and thus it is 20 plainly appropriate for resolution in this lawsuit. See Brock, 477 U.S. at 287.

21 3. Individual participation is unnecessary for the PRA claim

22 Defendants’ challenge to the Chamber’s standing to bring its Public Records Act claim is 23 equally baseless. Although the Chamber has properly shown that at least one of its members
 24

25 ⁵ Unlike here, Defendants’ sole case, Aspen Grove Owners Ass’n v. Park Promenade
 26 Apartments, LLC, No. 09 Civ. 1110, 2010 WL 4860345 (W.D. Wash. Nov. 19, 2010), involved compensatory damages, for which individualized proof is typically required. Id. at *1, *4.

1 maintains driver lists as trade secrets and thus is injured by the Ordinance’s disclosure
 2 requirement, Matthews Decl. ¶ 20, the Chamber is not claiming that the disclosure requirement is
 3 preempted as to particular members because their driver lists are trade secrets. Rather, the 4 Chamber’s claim is that the disclosure requirement is preempted insofar as it requires an
 5 individual to produce a trade secret. And the relief that the Chamber seeks is tailored to the 6 limited nature of its claim. The Chamber asks that the Court declare (and enter a corresponding 7 injunction) that Defendants cannot apply the Ordinance to compel the release of a trade secret.
 8 This claim too therefore presents a pure question of law: whether the Public Records Act
 9 preempts the Ordinance insofar as the Ordinance compels disclosure of trade secrets protected by 10 the Washington Trade Secrets Act, Wash. Rev. Code § 19.108.010(4). That legal question can 11 and should be answered without individual participation.

12 II. THE SO-CALLED PRUDENTIAL RIPENESS DOCTRINE PROVIDES NO
 13 BASIS FOR REFUSING TO EXERCISE JURISDICTION

14 Because the Chamber’s members satisfy Article III standing requirements, the defunct
 15 “prudential ripeness” doctrine does not allow the Court to refuse to exercise jurisdiction. Susan
 16 B. Anthony List, 134 S. Ct. at 2347. As the Supreme Court has repeatedly explained, to hold 17 claims nonjusticiable “on grounds that are prudential, rather than constitutional,” “is in some 18 tension with . . . the principle that a federal court’s obligation to hear and decide cases within its 19 jurisdiction is virtually unflagging.” Id. (quotation marks omitted); accord Lexmark Int’l, Inc. v.
 20 Static Control Components, Inc., 134 S. Ct. 1377, 1386 (2014); Sprint Comms., Inc. v. Jacobs, 21 134 S. Ct. 584, 591 (2013). This Court should therefore reject Defendants’ errant invitation to 22 “decline to exercise its jurisdiction based on prudential concerns.” Mot. at 10.

23 But even if the prudential ripeness doctrine were viable in theory, there is no basis for 24 applying it here. The two factors courts have previously considered are the “fitness” of the 25 issues for judicial review and the “hardship” to the parties if relief is denied. Susan B. Anthony
 26 List, 134 S. Ct. at 2347. Both those factors weigh heavily in the Chamber’s favor.

1 A. The Chamber’s Claims Are Fit For Judicial Review

2 Each of the Chamber’s claims present purely legal issues fit for review now. First, the
 3 antitrust claims allege that the Ordinance authorizes horizontal price fixing—a per se antitrust
 4 violation. These claims require legal analysis of the relationship between the Ordinance and the 5 Sherman Act. Because the Chamber is raising only a per se challenge, factual development of 6 anticompetitive effects in a relevant market is unnecessary. Big Bear Lodging Ass’n v. Snow
 7 Summit, Inc., 182 F.3d 1096, 1105–06 (9th Cir. 1999). Second, the NLRA preemption claims
 8 are legal disputes over the relationship between the Ordinance and federal labor law. The 9 Machinists preemption claim requires interpretation of the NLRA’s exemption of independent
 10 contractors from collective-bargaining requirements. The Garmon preemption claim asks
 11 whether the National Labor Relations Board, rather than local officials and state courts, has 12 primary jurisdiction to determine whether drivers using the Uber or Lyft App are independent
 13 contractors. That issue requires no factual development because the Court need only decide
 14 whether the NLRB has exclusive jurisdiction. Third, the state-law ultra vires claim simply asks
 15 the Court to interpret the statutes that the City relies on for authority to enact the Ordinance.
 16 Fourth, the state trade-secret claim primarily involves questions of statutory interpretation,
 17 particularly whether the driver lists of the Chamber’s members qualify as public records. The 18 Chamber has already submitted ample proof that the driver lists qualify as trade secrets.
 19 Matthews Decl. ¶ 20; Guled Decl. ¶ 13. Finally, as to all of these claims, the Chamber seeks 20 only prospective injunctive relief, obviating the need for any individualized proof of damages.

21 Defendants vaguely refer to “all the facts that must be developed” before evaluating the 22 merits, Mot. at 10, but they fail to note a single issue for which factual development is necessary.
 23 That is because there are none; all issues presented are legal ones fit for judicial resolution now.

24 B. Chamber Members Will Suffer Substantial Hardship If Review Is Deferred

25 Denying prompt judicial review will also “impose a substantial hardship” on the 26 Chamber’s members. Susan B. Anthony List, 134 S. Ct. at 2347. The Ordinance’s anti-

1 retaliation provision is already causing hardship by preventing one Chamber member from
 2 adopting non-unionization provisions in its driver contracts. See supra p. 7. And the Chamber’s
 3 members are currently expending time, money, and resources to prepare for the union organizing
 4 authorized by the Ordinance, such as through hiring labor experts and educating drivers about 5 the impact of unionization. See supra p. 12.

6 Even focusing solely on the mandatory disclosure requirements, it makes no sense to 7 delay this suit. Defendants suggest that, to avoid turning over driver information, the Chamber
 8 should wait to sue at least until the Director designates a QDR and that entity “announces its 9 intent” to seek to become an EDR by demanding a driver list. Mot. at 8; see also Mot. at 14.
 10 But because of the Ordinance’s compressed timetable, delaying that long would force the 11 Chamber or its members to seek injunctive relief on a highly expedited basis. Specifically, a 12 driver coordinator will be required to disclose driver information as early as sixteen days after 13 the QDR demands that information. See Ordinance § 3(C) & (D); Carey Decl. ¶ 5 & Ex. A.
 14 Thus, under Defendants’ approach, the parties would need to brief and argue, and the Court
 15 would need to decide, the several complicated legal issues presented by this case in just over two 16 weeks. That shortened timetable is entirely unnecessary and wasteful of the parties’ and the 17 Court’s resources. It would be better to allow for deliberate, comprehensive consideration of the 18 merits on a reasonable time schedule over the coming months than to follow Defendants’ plan
 19 and wait until the case becomes an emergency.

20 CONCLUSION

21 For the foregoing reasons, Defendants’ motion to dismiss should be denied.

22 Respectfully submitted,

23 Lily Fu Claffee
 24 (D.C. Bar No. 450502)
 (pro hac vice)
 25 Steven P. Lehotsky
 26 (D.C. Bar No. 992725)
 (pro hac vice)

By: s/ Timothy J. O’Connell
 Timothy J. O’Connell, WSBA 15372
 STOEL RIVES LLP
 600 University Street, Suite 3600
 Seattle, WA 98101
 (206) 624-0900
 (206) 386-7500 FAX
 Tim.oconnell@stoel.com

1 Warren Postman
2 (D.C. Bar. No. 995083)
3 (pro hac vice)
4 U.S. CHAMBER LITIGATION CENTER
5 1615 H Street, N.W.
6 Washington, D.C. 20062
7 (202) 463-3187
8 slehotsky@uschamber.com

Noel J. Francisco
(D.C. Bar No. 464752)
(pro hac vice)
Jacqueline M. Holmes
(D.C. Bar No. 450357)
(pro hac vice)
Christian G. Vergonis
(D.C. Bar No. 483293)
(pro hac vice)
Robert Stander
(D.C. Bar No. 1028454)
(pro hac vice)
JONES DAY
51 Louisiana Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20001
(202) 879-3939
(202) 616-1700 FAX
nfrancisco@jonesday.com
ATTORNEYS FOR PLAINTIFF

6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that on May 9, 2016, I electronically filed the foregoing with the Clerk of the Court using the CM/ECF system which will send notification of such filing to the parties who have appeared in this case

DATED: May 9, 2016 at Seattle, Washington.

STOEL RIVES LLP

s/ Timothy J. O'Connell
Timothy J. O'Connell, WSBA No. 15372
600 University Street, Suite 3600
Seattle, WA 98101
Telephone: (206) 624-0900
Facsimile: (206) 386-7500
Email: tim.oconnell@stoel.com