Native American
Enterprise Initiative

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce is the world's largest business federation representing the interests of more than 3 million businesses of all sizes, sectors, and regions, as well as state and local chambers and industry associations. As part of its efforts to reflect the rich and diverse nature of the American economy, in 2012 the Chamber officially launched the Native American Enterprise Initiative (NAEI) to promote the interests and agenda of tribes and tribal entrepreneurs.

Today, more than ever, Washington needs to hear the clear voice of the American business community to ensure a balanced policy agenda that keeps our economy growing and puts millions of Americans back to work.

The Native American Enterprise Initiative (NAEI) seeks to build on the Chamber's record of success and advocacy by focusing on the crucial economic issues confronting tribal business entities and Native American-owned enterprises.

This work is well under way. The Chamber filed amicus briefs in support of tribal interests before the Supreme Court, resulting in significant victories in the Court, and is actively pursuing solutions to energy, environmental, taxation, labor, and land into trust issues in Congress.

In addition, NAEI successfully lobbied for the passage and ultimately the enactment of the Tribal General Welfare Exclusion Act of 2014. The Initiative brought greater scrutiny to the contract support cost debate—resulting in a reversal of the administration's intentions on the matter and a victory for Indian Country.

NAEI's Mission

NAEI's mission is to operate a purpose-built initiative focusing on essential business issues of Indian Country. NAEI promotes an aggressive policy agenda for economic development causes on the Hill in coordination with Indian tribes and other Native American advocacy organizations.

Through the development of a cohesive set of policy priorities by its members, NAEI enables tribes to fight on a level playing field when opposing burdensome and onerous regulations, proposed rulemakings, and other agency overreach.

NAEI strives to return decision-making authority from the federal government back to native sovereign nations that are better suited to make policy decisions for their constituencies.

NAEI's Scope

- Enables tribes to expand and deepen their reach beyond traditional tribal organizations and become far more integrated into business community priorities.
- Helps strengthen tribes' ties to and collaboration with state and local chambers of commerce.
- Functions as the Native American policy-making arm of the Chamber.
- Presents tribes with a unique opportunity to deliver the broadest advocacy for tribal business priorities to Congress and the administration.

Leadership Council

The Leadership Council of the Native American Enterprise Initiative is composed of major tribes and tribal enterprises. Drawing on the Chamber's vast resources and long-standing track record of impacting public policy, the council brings new energy to developing lasting solutions to Native American issues.

Core Council Functions

- Serves as the governing body of NAEI.
- Identifies and guides NAEI's legislative agenda.
- Develops strategy for advocacy to Congress, executive branch agencies, and other government entities.
- Advises Chamber staff dedicated to the NAEI agenda and advocacy.
- Determines NAEI's participation and coordination with other Native American advocacy organizations and coalitions.
