Robert Beiser

Strategic Initiatives Director, Sex Trafficking Polaris

Robert Beiser is the strategic initiatives director for sex trafficking at Polaris. Beiser heads a team working to prevent and reduce sex trafficking in the U.S., relying on Polaris' experience, data, and partnerships from over a decade of operating the National Human Trafficking Hotline.

Beiser comes to Polaris after 10 years with Seattle Against Slavery, a nonprofit focused on advocacy, mobilization, education, and technology to stop human trafficking. At Seattle Against Slavery, Beiser increased the number of sex trafficking survivors by connecting with support services in Washington state and worked on measures to disrupt online sex trafficking nationwide.

Previously, he worked at Microsoft as an operations analyst, then entered the nonprofit sector as a social justice advocate.

Beiser is a recipient of the 2011 Covenant Foundation Pomegranate Prize and the winner of the 2018 Social Venture Partners (Seattle) Fast Pitch award for nonprofits. He served on the Washington State Task Force on Human Trafficking.

He holds a master's degree in public affairs from the University of Washington.

Michael Billet

Senior Manager, Policy Research Employment Policy Division U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Michael Billet, senior manager of policy research at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, keeps members and internal Chamber policy staff abreast of pending labor, immigration, and health care legislation, as well as federal regulatory and subregulatory activities. He is also responsible for planning the Chamber's annual workplace and community wellness forum and serves as the program director of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's Task Force to Eradicate Human Trafficking.

Previously, Billet worked as the public policy assistant at the National Business Group on Health, where he provided administrative and logistical support for the annual Business Health Agenda conference, conducted research, and wrote policy materials. This included drafting testimony, letters to Congress and the administration, briefings for Hill visits, and other public policy activities.

He also has research experience working at the American Enterprise Institute, the Congressional Management Foundation, and for former Sen. Rick Santorum (R-PA).

Billet has a bachelor's degree in English and political science from Muhlenberg College and a master's degree in governmental studies from the Johns Hopkins University.

Mimi Braniff

Managing Director, Government Affairs Delta Air Lines

Mimi Braniff is managing director of government affairs at Delta Air Lines. Earlier in her career, Braniff held a number of positions on Capitol Hill, including special counsel to the Senate Energy Committee, where she advised on electricity issues, climate change, cybersecurity, and EPA regulations. She also served as committee counsel to the Senate Appropriations Committee, where she developed appropriations legislation and drafted bill text, report language, and amendments. As deputy chief counsel to the Commerce Committee, she advised on policy, legislative, and legal matters, such as legislation impacting the telecom industry.

While in the private sector, Braniff was vice president of federal government affairs for NRG Energy, overseeing the company's Washington, D.C., office and developing its political strategies.

In addition, Braniff practiced law in California and in Indiana, focusing on litigation.

Braniff has her Bachelor of Science in political science from Lewis & Clark College and her J.D. from Pepperdine School of Law.

Mar Brettmann, Ph.D.

CEO and Executive Director Businesses Ending Slavery & Trafficking (BEST)

Mar Brettmann is CEO and executive director of Businesses Ending Slavery & Trafficking (BEST), a nonprofit that works with business leaders to prevent and interrupt human trafficking.

For a decade, Brettmann worked as a university professor, teaching and researching on topics of human rights, philosophy, and religion. In her research, she became concerned about the brutal exploitation that takes place through human trafficking.

In 2011, Brettmann participated in a conversation with human trafficking experts who were advising a charitable foundation on interventions to prevent trafficking. The experts said that businesses were key to prevention, yet were largely missing from the national response. BEST was created to fill that gap. As executive director, she educates business leaders and provides them with tools to implement socially responsible strategies that prevent human trafficking.

Brettmann has a Ph.D. in theology and ethics from the University of St. Andrews in St. Andrews, Scotland; a Master of Christian Studies (MCS) from Regent College in Vancouver, British Columbia; and a B.A. in business and economics from Wheaton College in Wheaton, Illinois. Brettmann authored the book Theories of Justice.

Nicole “Nikki” Clifton

Vice President, UPS Global Public Affairs, UPS

Nicole (“Nikki”) Clifton is an attorney and government affairs professional who leads UPS’ federal workforce policy and legislative advocacy efforts. She manages a broad portfolio of workforce issues affecting the company’s 435,000 employees and advances its interests before Congress, federal agencies, and the states’ attorneys general.

Clifton spearheaded and coordinates UPS’ anti-human trafficking awareness initiative in conjunction with Truckers Against Trafficking, reaching more than 95,000 UPS employees. Her Ted Talk “3 Ways Businesses Can Fight Sex Trafficking” has earned more than 1 million views. In 2018, Transportation Secretary Elaine L. Chao appointed her to the USDOT’s Advisory Committee on Human Trafficking.

Earlier, Clifton served as labor and employment counsel for UPS in Atlanta. Before that, she worked for Delta Air Lines as a litigator and counselor for the Flight Operations team. Clifton also practiced labor and employment law with Alston & Bird LLP and Smith, Currie and Hancock in Atlanta.

Clifton received her B.A. magna cum laude in communications from Howard University’s Annenberg Honors Program and her J.D. from the University of Georgia School of Law.

Lisa Cox

Program Director

Verité

Lisa Cox works at Verité, a labor rights non-governmental organization that provides knowledge and tools to eliminate labor and human rights abuses in global supply chains.

Cox is a human rights lawyer with over 20 years of experience working on rule of law and access to justice issues in the U.S., Latin America, Asia, and Sub-Saharan Africa. She has worked with a variety of stakeholders to promote respect for human rights, particularly as they relate to equality and nondiscrimination, gender, trafficking and migration, children's rights, and the right to live free from torture.

Her experience includes representing the U.S. government in enforcing civil rights laws through strategic litigation; conducting outreach, training, and capacity building to promote access to justice and respect for the rule of law; promoting consensus building; and resolving conflicts through mediation.

Cox holds a Bachelor of Arts in economics and political science from the University of California, San Diego; a Master of Public Administration from New York University – Robert F. Wagner School of Public Service; and a J.D. from American University Washington College of Law.

Before returning home to Washington state, she worked as director of the National Export Initiative and deputy chief of staff at the U.S. Department of Commerce, legislative director and chief counsel for U.S. Sen. Maria Cantwell (D-WA), and policy assistant for the Domestic Policy Council. Gregoire began her career at K&L Gates, an international law firm, counseling clients on litigation, legislation, and regulatory matters.

Since 2013, she has served as an elected commissioner for the Port of Seattle. Further, she represents Microsoft on the Global Internet Forum to Counter Terrorism and previously served on the board of directors for the International Center for Missing & Exploited Children.

Gregoire is a graduate of Willamette University in Salem, Oregon, and Harvard Law School.

Paula Haines

Executive Director Freedom a la Cart

Since 2016, Paula Haines has served as executive director of Freedom a la Cart, a nonprofit organization that empowers survivors of human trafficking to build a new life of freedom and self-sufficiency. She began her work at Freedom a la Cart as a volunteer, board member, and founder of the Eat Up! Columbus fundraising event.

In 2011, the organization launched a food cart social enterprise to provide job skills training to survivors—which has blossomed into a thriving box lunch and catering business employing more than 90 survivors—59 in the last three years. Of those 59 women, 24 transitioned from the program into sustainable employment.

Previously, she operated her own boutique marketing agency for 10 years. Haines was awarded a 2017 Pillar Award as a Nonprofit Executive Director of the Year and named a Central Ohio Smart 50 Award honoree for her business leadership.

Vanessa Perkins

Bailiff

Changing Actions to Change Habits (CATCH) Court

Vanessa Perkins became addicted to illegal drugs and engaged in substance abuse at an early age. A human trafficker approached her and promised her the love, approval, and safety she had been searching for. This trafficker coerced her into further actions against her free will, including sexual exploitation.

After repeated trips to jail, Perkins landed at CATCH Court in Franklin County, Columbus, Ohio, which gave her a place to heal and change. As part of CATCH Court, she was ordered to go to Amethyst, Inc., where she had an opportunity to work on years of trauma, drug addiction, and parenting.

In 2011, she started working at Freedom a la Cart, a nonprofit catering business and a partner of CATCH Court to fill the gaps between jail and treatment. Freedom a la Cart is also a workforce development program, as well as a mentoring program to teach survivors life skills for employment. Freedom a la Cart helped her write her resume to apply for a job at the City Attorney's Office in Columbus.

Perkins started working for the Columbus City Attorney's Office in 2013 until she accepted the position of bailiff in 2018 for the Honorable Judge Paul Herbert, who presides over the CATCH Court program as well as criminal, traffic, and civil cases.

Amber Runyon

Founder and CEO Eleventh Candle Co.

Amber Runyon is an activist for social change. A hospice nurse turned social entrepreneur, she is the founder and CEO of Eleventh Candle Co., which brings hope to women in the U.S. who have been vulnerable to human trafficking, abuse, exploitation, and addiction by providing a therapeutic work setting and rehabilitative resources.

Eleventh Candle Co. is a product line launched through Legacy, a nonprofit based out of Columbus, Ohio. Collectively, these organizations have come together as a social enterprise working to redeem, restore, empower, and equip those vulnerable to human trafficking.

After volunteering as a nurse on a mission trip in Ethiopia, Runyon witnessed children abducted on the street in broad daylight and sold into sex trafficking. After returning home, she made it her mission to educate Central Ohio about the harsh realities of human trafficking, helping community members understand that human trafficking is real and impacts the forgotten in our communities. Subsequently, Runyon launched Eleventh Candle Co., a business that employs those who have experienced human trafficking, offering resources to redeem, empower, and support victims on their journey to burn bright again.

Runyon has a degree in registered nursing from Fortis College-Centerville.
